Pass Old-Timer Dies at the Coast

John Anderson, one of the old time pioneers of the Pass, died in the general hospital at Vancouver on the 13th. He was born in Sweden on January 16, 1844, and emigrated to the United States when quite young. He had thirty-eight years of experience in coal mining in the State of Washington in Coeur d'Alene and Bellevue and in Peru. During the last year he had made his home in Coleman, until a couple of months ago when he went to the Coast to recuperate after an attack of bronchitis and was doing well until he was taken down about a month ago with influenza.

His body was shipped to Coleman, and funeral took place this afternoon, the remains being laid to rest in Coleman cemetery. Many friends and old acquaintances from Bellevue, Blairmore and other Pass towns attended the funeral, which was conducted by the Rev. D. K. Allen.

Blairmore Wins From Pincher By Score 8-1.

The third game of the season on local ice was played on Monday night between Pincher Creek and Blairmore. The ice was in perfect condition. Blairmore won the game and the game started at 8.00. Both teams launched themselves into the game in perfect style by playing a pure combination throughout, which was indeed pleasing to witness, after one has seen so much of the slap-stick over-the-top variety of play.

Goddard, of Blairmore, made a transcontinental with the puck, only to finish with a miss shot at the goal. Dear Old Harbour took it into his head to steer that puck into the Prospector Land, making the first goal for the miners in five and a half minutes' play, to be followed up by another goal off Graham's floor. Charlie paid for that goal by coming in contact with a hockey stick, which inflicted a minor laceration of the forehead. A local doctor was present, so the damage was of no military importance. Graham's team again able to resume operations on the western front.

An armistice of ten minutes was granted after the first twenty minutes of play, after which the game was again started. Marquis, of Pincher Creek, made a dashing getaway, scoring the first for Pincher after ten minutes of play. W. Scott, of Blairmore, after careful maneuvering and strategy, managed to arrest the puck, directing it into the Pincher salient. This was followed up by two goals off W. Turner and Doc Harbour. The whistle again blew, warning the players that another armistice had been granted them of ten minutes duration, and now of the Pincherers remarked "Thank God, we need it," and we believed them.

The captains of both teams held a brief conference on the ice before going over the top for the last time, and deciding to shorten the last period. This decision was unanimously endorsed by the Pincher boys, not one dissenting vote being cast. The game was again resumed at 9.15. Goddard of Blairmore, had a very Hunnish look in his eyes after missing that goal in the first period, and had been waiting his chance to take coup. Eventually it came by W. Turner, the wicked one making a pass to Goddard, who drove the puck home. Oh, boys, it was good to see the devilish and triumphant look in his eyes and a "I have conquered!" look upon his face. This goal was followed up by another scored by Doc Harbour, who was unassisted. Harbour again gets the puck, making a sharp pass to Graham, who shot it home; but this goal was not allowed as Graham admitted kicking it into the net in the shape.

The whistle blew, ending the game, which was absolutely clean throughout, no penalties being awarded to either side. During the second period the inclination to play rough was very evident on both sides. Mr. Kelly (that's Irish, by jinks!) stopped the players, warning them that if name continued terrible penalties outside of death would be inflicted upon them; therefore cleaner play was in vogue after this admonishing. While official passes were distributed in both teams, they were carefully checked up by the referee, who was square and fair throughout every phase of the game. The third period brought out some wonderful combination work on both sides. Time after time the Blairmore boys went down the ice in perfect union, the puck flying from one to the other, giving the Pincher defence, Armstrong and Alexander no chance whatever. The Blairmore defence was absolutely impeccable, as admitted by the visitors. Harbour and Turner were able to hook the puck from any position, making it necessary for Pincher to shoot from outside the defence, these being easy shots for Rhynas to intercept. Blairmore's subs, Doc Elwin and W. Scott, both played very good games. The same can be said of Pincher's subs, Dubuque and Reardon.

Blairmore's lineup: M. G. Rhynas, Charlie Graham, Doc Harbour, Tony Veprava, William Turner and W. Goddard.

Pincher's lineup: McLean, Armstrong, Dubuque, Marquis, Wallace and Alexander.

ALMIGHTY VOICE

Some New Sidelights on the History of This Famous Indian Outlaw.

By O-GR-MAS-ES (Little Chief).

The reply came in due course, and after the usual official verbiage, the pith of it was that this prisoner had escaped from the Northwest Mounted Police and they were quite capable of capturing him without any outside assistance. On the Indian's next visit I repeated this to him and he at once dropped the "charade." After three or four more men were killed or wounded before he was finally disposed of.

Time went on and I had occasion to visit Kinsinger, going by Mount Nebo, that splendid farm lately owned by Thos. Sanderson, ex-M.L.A. There I met a famous little Manitowishie named, Ducky, with a neighbor, both on horseback and armed to the teeth.

Ducky was well-known in the force and district for his most impressive way of imparting even minor matters of news, but there was something really big and engaging about him. He blazed out in tragic tones, "Almighty Voice is surrounded in a bluff near Batocbe by a small army of men." Then, letting the effects of that news sink in, he went on to say, "I am awfully glad to meet you, and perhaps you can help me out. I am so glad if I can, old man. In what way?"

"Well, orders are to corral all Indians on their reserves, and I note three spees down by Waterhen Lake and I am wondering how I can induce them to go back to La Corne, our instructions being to avoid any force of the matter."

"Well, I will take a hand, Ducky, but only on one condition, that I run the business entirely."

He had been quarreling with me for some time and knew I had considerable experience with the wily natives so gladly consented.

The spees were only two or three miles away, and on we rode. "Ducky," then, while I brought up the rear, the only one of the party unarmed. I well knew every movement of the police had been watched, though as we passed close to the tent, there was no sign of life. I whispered for them to ride on quicker and wait for me a half a mile or so away in a sheltered place. This while I slowed my pony down, and then finally turned him and rode back to the tent. I said to a kid who was peeping out, "Who is camping here?" "Ne Moo-cum," was the reply, meaning his Grandfather Coup. This was a nickname for a wily old Indian whose real name was "Oop-why-ah-ah."

Bardon a little depression here as Coup's memory deserves a few lines. In the first place, he was a typical likeness of Lord Beaconsfield and in profile the resemblance was startling. Secondly, he was no lover of the white race, but hid this with a coat of slyness. I had sized him up years before and had absolutely no fear for him, as I considered his influence (which was considerable) had a bad effect upon the Indians. I tied up my pony and entered the tepee. Here was Coup as large as life, Blue-Skin and Assin-cappo, and the usual cordial shake hands took place. "What's the news," I asked, which is always the first question in an Indian country. "There is none here," was the reply. Silence and lots of smoke. "But you," said Coup, "wait in your news."

Well, I was full of it and gabbed away at generalities for half an hour, giving all small details from Nut Lake, the Bay of the Mountain, Weagami, and so on, but I could detect a gleam of suspicion in the old diplomat's eyes.

"Has anything been heard of the unfortunate?" (meaning Almighty Voice) who by the way was his nephew.

"Well," I said, and may God forgive me for lying. It is reported that he has struck south for the boundary.

Silence, and then: "Well, they knew better."

Finally after finishing our smoke and again shaking hands all round I started out, but just at the entrance I stopped, slapped my leg and said, "Well, I nearly forgot, but there is news, big news!" And now indeed they crowded close to hear it.

"What is it, Ogemastee?" Why I replied, "Gordon is being moved." Gordon was the Farm Inspector at Ft. La Corne, and was very popular with the Indians and very generous with Government grub. "Yes, he is ordered to The Pas, but is giving a feast to the whole band before going," and I started counting on my fingers to get the date. "Why, it is tomorrow, yes," counting again, "no doubt it is tomorrow, and you fellows won't see him and you will miss the feast."

A short column followed, the women were told, and before I left the tepee packing had started, and by the time I had joined my companions the tents were down, and the boys after the ponies. Ducky was thunderstruck and wanted to know the why and wherefore, but I simply told him to keep a discreet distance in the rear and follow them to La Corne. Naturally, when they reached the Reserve they heard the truth, no doubt with feelings too deep for words. I told my Indians the story on returning home, and they enjoyed the joke tremendously and the news went far and wide. Who Ogemastee had outwitted Oop-why-ah-ah (the alias Coup) that famous and sly old Medicine Man, not to mention himself.

I did not see the old fellow until the following summer, when, walking with Doctor Shadd, I passed Coup sitting on the Carrot River bridge. He looked at me and shook his head several times, as much as to say "This man is beyond redemption." "Requiescat in Pace," Coup for he joined his fathers some years ago.

Just at the time that Coup, Blue-Skin and Assin-cappo, were trekking to the feast at La Corne, Almighty Voice and a young Indian who used to trade with me, named La-sao, were being shelled and shot by a small army of men surrounding the green bluff in the centre of which the outlaw had dug a rifle pit. His old mother sat on a high hill close at hand singing his war song and death chant. They were both dead when the pit was rushed.

A sad tale to this day is that the report was general to the effect that the missing serf turned up and poor Lo was innocent after all, but I cannot vouch for this.

Trade Agreement With France

Canada Has Concluded a New Trade Agreement With France.

Ottawa—Canada has concluded a new trade agreement with France. The agreement provides for the minimum tariff of Canada to be given in exchange for the minimum French tariff or nearly the whole list of articles included in the convention of 1907-09 with a considerably extended list of articles not included in that convention and for a fixed percentage tariff on certain other articles, some of which were included in the preceding convention at minimum rates and others not included in that convention.

Withdraws From Council.

Paris—Hugh V. Wallace, United States ambassador to France, formally withdrew from the Council of Ambassadors. Mr. Wallace pointed out that in view of the fact that the United States had failed to ratify the Treaty of Versailles, there was no further occasion for United States participation in the deliberations of the council.

Returned Men Take Advantage of Free Medical Treatment.

Toronto—in connection with a recent order-in-council by which all members of the Canadian Overseas Forces who are unemployed and in need of attention are to be given medical and surgical treatment free of charge until March 31 next, Col. J. M. Scutcheon, medical director, D unit of the department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, in an interview here, said that his department was treating about 9,000 soldiers now, and this number will be increased to about 12,000 as a result of the order-in-council.

Montreal.—A Montreal Star cable from Dublin, says:

"The Sinn Fein organization has 200,000 men under arms in Ireland. It was stated authoritatively. This Republican army represents five per cent. of the Irish population, according to the informant.

The army has military discipline, and is organized to zone groups with commanders in each, all under order from a central headquarters; is partially informed and has a number of secret arsenals and armories.

The Sinn Fein army of 200,000 comprises men ranging in age from 15 to 30. They pursue ordinary farm and city life, except that they are subject to call for ambush duty or secret service, and weekly military lectures and drill.

Canadian Labor Most Efficient

Minister of Labor Declares Little Fault Can Be Found With Production.

Hamilton, Ont.—An optimistic note was sounded by Hon. Gordon Robertson, minister of labor, in addressing members of Hamilton Association of Canadian Building and Construction Industries on industrial conditions in Canada.

Senator Robertson urged a spirit of forbearance on the part of employers toward labor. While labor's attitude during the war might have been unreasonable in a few instances, he said that was no reason why employers should retaliate in kind now that conditions appeared to give them the advantage.

"Much more can be done with a little sugar and a square deal than can be done with vinegar and dictation," he said, adding that the efficiency of Canadian workers during the last five years had not decreased to the extent it was popularly believed it had. Of 4,106 questionnaires sent to Canadian employers it was found that only 37 per cent. reported decreased efficiency, while the remainder noted no change.

Russians Cause Trouble in London

Recent Attempts to Start Riots Attributed to Russian Revolutionists.

London—Recent attempts by unemployed to seize town halls and start riots cannot be attributed to genuine unemployed but were instigated by Russian revolutionists, according to the Evening News, which claims to have found the headquarters of the Red organization that is engineering trouble in England.

A News article states that the Russians have a committee headed by a young Russian woman with an office off a City Road in the business district. Some of the committee's funds have been raised in England, but the bulk comes from Russia. The head of the committee has established sub-committees under guise of unemployed committees in areas of the London boroughs, their object being to take advantage of labor conditions to secure enough recruits to begin a campaign of terrorism.

Greek Offensive Fails.

London.—Assertion that the Greek offensive in the direction of Buza, Asia Minor, has failed is contained in a Rome dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, under recent date.

The situation at Smyrna is serious, it is declared, and it is believed that the new Greek Commander-in-Chief will be recalled.

Plans for Wheat Marketing

Co-operative Board to Market Products is Planned for Prairie Provinces.

Winnipeg.—Plans for the establishment of a co-operative Wheat and Farm Products Board for the three prairie provinces is under consideration by the Manitoba Government. The board would be composed of representatives from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and deal mainly with grain.

A member of the cabinet intends to bring about government action and revive the co-operative marketing program instituted by the Federal Government in 1918, but it is felt the Provincial Government can do nothing alone.

Whether or not the government would guarantee a bond of the board or whether shares would be sold to farmers wishing to participate would remain to be dealt with. It is estimated that between $300,000 and $400,000,000 would be required.

Object To Mennonites

New York Sun Is Doubtful If They Will Become a Valuable Acquisition to U.S.

New York.—The New York Sun, commenting on the reported intention of 30,000 Mennonites from Manitoba to the State of Mississippi, remarks:

"A solid group of 30,000 persons, whose adherence to their peculiar religious tenets makes them claim immunity from the plain duty of a citizen as recognized by those of sincere good faith and intelligence, may not strike citizens of the United States as a valuable acquisition for any particular State. Especially in Mississippi citizens may demand that the would-be immigrants make a cogent demonstration of their actual worth as citizens or residents."

Leave It To The Ladies

Women Brought Mayor to Unemployment Rally in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg.—A meeting of unemployed women and girls was held here to discuss plans for relief of the present situation. The Mayor, Edward Parnell, was expected to be at the meeting by the women, but he did not appear so a delegation went to the City Hall and brought him in. He gave them every assurance that all possible was being done to alleviate the situation. The women suggest that one of the local hotels be taken over by the city where unemployed women and girls could be fed and cared for.

Real Service To The Country Is Aim Of The United Farmers

Brandon, Man.—Leadership in Federal politics of Hon. Thomas A. Crerar was formally accepted by Manitoba Farmers following his address to the annual convention of the United Farmers here. A resolution was passed endorsing his choice by the Manitoba Council of Agriculture to the position of National policy.

Mr. Crerar, in his address, attacked the government railway policy and termed the acquisition of the national railways as a striking example of the result of public apathy in politics.

He began his address by referring to the fact that the Great War Veterans' Association, which, he said, had been largely misunderstood throughout Canada.

"No citizens," he said, "are more genuinely working for the welfare of the Dominion than the officials of this association."

He made a plea for the delegates' support and sympathy to their cause.

He spoke on the opportunities and duties before the farmer organizations and said that throughout Canada, the impression prevailed that they are a dangerous group out for their own advancements.

This impression, the speaker said, has originated since their entrance into politics.

The election of a Farmers-Labor government in Ontario and the subsequent election of Farmer members to the Federal House, were events, he said, which have brought the movement under criticism from those who were used to control affairs.

With over a quarter of a million persons lined up in farmers' movements, real service to the country should result.

"Anyone who has studied the political situation must see that such service has been needed and is badly needed at the present time," he declared.

The whole struggle for government during the past century has been the struggle to get away from centralized authority. The Government of Canada should be the responsibility of the elected representatives of the people. If there is anything in past governments to be ashamed of, it is mainly due to the neglect by the people and their inattention to matters of importance.

There was never a time when the average situation should take an interest in public affairs, more than at the present time, he continued, because of the after effects of the war debt, necessary re-construction, necessity of paying to returned men and dependents adequate pensions and deciding the best means of raising money.

"The railway situation in Canada is the most striking example of what follows apathy in public affairs." The stimulation of public thought from the organization of such organizations as the farmers, will do away with this, he said, and the resulting benefits cannot be over-estimated.

The speaker made a plea for greater interest on the part of citizens in federal and provincial matters. The lack of interest is more apparent in Federal Government affairs. Mr. Crerar held, he said, no special privilege as a farmer, he had a pre-eminence in Canada. He explained "special privileges," as the giving of favors through government "pull" to individuals and corporations.

"That is one of my objections to protective tariff," he continued, "for it is a form of 'special privileges' which permits the manufacturers to take money out of the pockets of the people."

Receives Honorary Degree

Premier Drury of Ontario Is Honored by Queen's University.

Kingston, Ont.—At a special convocation held at Queen's University the honorary degree of LL.D. was conferred upon E. C. Drury by the chancellor of Queen's University, E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the C.P.R., who came from Montreal by special train in order to attend the occasion, presenting the premier the honorary degree. Principal Taylor praised him as an administrator and said his government had won the praise of many people who were not so much interested in party politics as they were in good government.

Wheat Marketing Proposals

Stewart and Riddell Will Be Advisers For Saskatchewan.

Regina, Sask.—The Saskatchewan Government has enlisted the services of James Stewart, chairman of the Canada Wheat Board, and F. W. Riddell, vice-chairman of the board and general manager of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company, as advisers to it in the wheat marketing proposals. This announcement was made by Hon. C. A. Dunning, provincial treasurer. What will be the exact duties of Stewart and Riddell under the arrangement which has been consummated has not been disclosed. It is understood, however, that they will prepare for the government a report on the whole grain marketing question so far as it affects Saskatchewan. Whether this report will include suggestions for a provincial government wheat marketing scheme or will recommend some one of the several propositions for co-operative pools which have been advanced recently could not be learned.

"The government," said Mr. Dunning, "has taken full cognizance of the tentative proposals of the Canadian Council of Agriculture for a pooling system based on long term contracts with producers, and the action of the government should not be taken as necessarily implying opposition to those proposals."

The Canadian fleet has arrived at Bermuda en route for Esquimaut, B.C.

Want Stricter Plan Adopted for Selection of Immigrants

United Farmers View With Apprehension Further Efforts to Colonize the West Under Present Conditions.

Brandon, Man.—Stating that they viewed with apprehension further efforts to colonize the western provinces by the "Western Canada Colonization Association," without offering any suggestion to improve present conditions, surrounding agriculture, delegates to the convention of the United Farmers of Manitoba, and the convention of the Manitoba Cattle Breeders, met at the Manitoba Cattle Breeders' association here, to discuss its efforts to solving problems confronting farmers already on the land, and urged the Dominion Government to adopt a stricter plan for the selection of immigrants.

Mr. J. Colyer Wilborn, proposed resolution and it was seconded by D. G. Mackenzie, vice-president of the United Farmers. A second resolution urged upon the federal authorities the necessity of impressing upon the British Government the fulfilment of the undertaking to remove the embargo on Canadian cattle.

G. Tovel, general secretary of the Manitoba Co-operative Dairies, Ltd., Lorette, Man., advocated "selective immigration" in the marketing of farm produce to ensure the fastest getting on, adequate return for his labor. He outlined the improvement in conditions resulting from the formation of the co-operative dairies company and asked that better methods be introduced, making an industry instead of an occupation as it is at present.

Crime and Insanity

During the past few years the attitude of the medical men to insanity has undergone a fundamental change, of which the legal profession has yet only dimly aware. It is for this reason that arguments take place between doctors and judges which leave both disputants unconvinced, and the public mystified.
The doctor is really speaking one language, and the judge another. They mean different things; agreement is impossible.

Putting aside any individual case, we may come to look broadly at the causes of the change of medical opinion. We find at once that two new schools exist, the school which regards insanity as a disease in the physical sense, and the school which regards it as the outcome of a fault in mental evolution. The first group point to the fact that certain states of the mind are now definitely referable to disease.

The second group, though not every member admits it, is really under the influence of Freud's doctrine, which has come to be known as psychoanalysis.
The essence of this doctrine is that a desire which cannot be satisfied is suppressed or forgotten and passed into what is called the "unconscious mind."
The patient no longer remembers it. Yet it is said to remain active, and is spoken of as an unresolved "conflict." This conflict is continually seeking solution and as continuously being repressed from consciousness. Thus it can only reach conscious (and so, as it were, make its demands known) under a disguise.

What is said to happen is that the conflict attaches itself to all sorts of experiences, and emotions and even morally intensifies it. In this way a slight irritation becomes, with the conflict added to it, a violent outbreak of rage or passion. The patient, being unaware of his conflict, imagines that the slight cause for annoyance is the real and only cause of his outbreak, and so, in order to satisfy his reason, exaggerates the annoyance into a great insult or even into a persecution.

The doctor's attitude is that these outbursts, which may result in crime, are really beyond control, since the whole force of the old and repressed conflict is behind them. Had there been no conflict and no repression, long ago there would have been no crime.

It is evident that both these views,
the physical and the psychological, point in the same direction. To hold them strongly is to look on any abnormal or unreasonable act as an indication of lack of sense of responsibility. Infact, the legal dictum, "He is insane, and therefore not responsible," is reversed, and reads, "He is not responsible and therefore is insane."

That this latter view is fraught with great danger there can be no doubt, for any deviation from good conduct can be justified in terms of an unconsciousness which may contain anything. Indeed, evidence accumulated by today's analysis, as misunderstood and abused by charlatans, may become a curse of the first magnitude. On the other hand, the legal mind seems to need some refreshing in view of the advance of medical knowledge. Insanity, it is understood by a lawyer, has no little relationship to the medical usage of that word.—London Times.

RATS EATING MATCHES

NOT A CAUSE FOR FIRE

In the lengthy category of reasons and excuses for fires, that of friction due to the gnawing of match heads by rats and mice has not to be far from the top. When all else could prove an alibi the rats were blamed. The increasing number of fires attributed to this cause emphasized the necessity of establishing the possibility of their bona fide.

The Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc., of Chicago, after careful and prolonged experiments by its fire prevention engineers, has reached the definite conclusion that rats would rather starve to death than eat the modern match heads.

This conclusion was arrived at through a series of elaborate tests, covering a period of eight months and more in which numbers of rats were placed in enclosures with boxes of matches arranged so that they could reach them. The first test was made without feeding or watering the rats; in the second they were given water, but no food; and in the third they were given food other than matches. In all three cases, after two weeks, when starved, but supplied with water until they died. Occasionally the starved rats were gnawed and the boxes broken open and matches scattered all around, but although frequently the rats ate one another, in no case were the match heads gnawed nor was there any apparent danger of ignition.

FRUIT GROWING IN THE PRAIRIE PROVINCES

Fruit growing in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta is yet in the experimental stages. Farmers and others have attempted for themselves, but the wide sweep of the prairies, the severe and intermittent frosts and the lack of protection from the elements render the problem somewhat difficult of solution.
Much is being done by the creation of windbreaks, but much remains to be accomplished before success has been fairly or generally achieved.
The efforts of the individual are being generously seconded by both the Dominion and Provincial governments.

In this connection an experimental station was established six years ago at Modern, Man. The progress made by this station is described by the Dominion Horticulturist in the December number of the Agricultural Gazette. Mr. Macoun states that, so far, ninety acres have been used, on which, in order to supply protection from the wind, hedges of Siberian pear tree and of willows were set out. These hedges have grown well.
Forty acres have been planted with apple of varieties tested in the December number of the Agricultural Gazette. Strawberries have flourished; mushrooms and watermelons are also successfully grown in the district by the Mennonites. Potatoes have been grown for seed purposes.
Altogether splendid success has been achieved and the prospects for fruit growing in the prairie provinces have been greatly enhanced. New and more suitable varieties of fruits are being continually experimented with.

Six bandits killed two railroad view with greater suspicion a fire which can be attributed to no other cause than that of rats gnawing matches.

How to Cook Husbands

(Contributed)

Many husbands are utterly spoiled by mismanagement in cooking and so are not tender and good. Some women go about it as if their husbands were bladders and blow them up; others keep them constantly in hot water; others let them freeze by their carelessness and indifference. Some keep them in a stew by irritating ways and words; others roast them; and others keep them in a pickle all their lives. It can't be supposed that any husband will be tender and good managed in this way; but they are really delicious when properly treated. In selecting your husband you should not be guided by the silvery appearance, as in buying mackerel, not by the golden tint as if you wanted salmon. Be sure to select him yourself, as tastes differ. Do not go to the market for him, as the best are always brought to the door. It is far better to have none unless you will patiently learn how to cook him. A preserving kettle of the finest porcelain is best, but if you have nothing better than an earthenware pickle, it will do with care. See that the lines in which you serve him is nicely washed and mended, with the required number of buttons and strings sewed on. Tie him in a kettle by a strong cord called Comfort, as the one called Duty is apt to be weak. He is apt to fly out of the kettle and be burned and crusty on the edges, since, like crabs and lobsters, you have to cook him while alive. Make a clear steady fire out of love, neatness, and cheerfulness; set him as near to this as seems to agree with him. If he splutter and fizz, do not be anxious about him. Some husbands do this until they are quite done. Add a little sugar in the form of what affectionate call kisses, but no vinegar or pepper must be used on any account. A little spice improves them, but it must be used with care and judgment. Do not stick any sharp instrument into him to see if he is becoming tender; hit him gently, watch the while and you cannot fail to know when he is done. If thus treated you will find him very digestible, agreeing nicely with you and the children, and he will keep as long as you wish, unless someone careless and set in 'uns' cool a place.

WM. KAISER, ESQ.

Since last January ex-Kaiser has received over fifty-two million marks for subsistence. And some people think the Allies are asking too much from Germany. Here's a rhyme about it:

The Last Straw
Josiah Blunt, a patient man,
Enlisted when the war began.
He shined his buttons, learned his
And went to settle Kaiser Bill.

A month or two on Salisbury Plain
In unimaginable rain
They coached him in the art of killing.

And found Josiah very willing.
They shipped him off to Flanders quick.

The Channel crossing made him sick.
In freezing wind and drenching spray
He never had a word to say.

The battle line was mostly mud;
The rain descended in a flood;
The Bosche came over wave on wave;
Josiah's temper never gave.

And when the waves were beaten back,
They choked him with a gas attack;
And gasping, fighting for his breath,
He lingered at the gates of death.

Josiah never cursed the Hun
For all the mischief he had done.
He said: "They're only bred to kill,
So let the Kaiser pay the bill."

And now he's living on a pension
That's barely big enough to mention.
A few short years he'll cough and Until consumption takes him off.

The Germans handed Kaiser Bill
The little sum of fifty mill.
Yes, fifty million marks last year
For sustenance and supper beer.

At last I hear Josiah say:
"Well, d—n—n the Kaiser, anyway!
They ought to put him on a level
With Traitor Judas and the Devil."

It does seem a bit off that the old reproach who did more than any other man to bring about the war, should be allowed to live in peace and plenty when half Europe is starving. Mr. Hoover has thirteen million dollars to feed the children of Middle Europe this winter, and the people of the United States are responding generously. At normal rates the Count of Hohenzollern's "unemployment pay" for the year would just about equal this sum. He had the impudence, too, to demand another 162,000,000 marks as compensation, mainly for the loss of his civil list allowance, and another 100,000,000 marks for loss of land. The Hohenzollern compensation because the Allies have a little compensation bill awaiting payment, and their patience, like Josiah's might be strained to the breaking point—Philosopher.

"Maybe you'd like to move to Bridgetown, ma," laughed Mary Ann. "I know what you mean," returned Mrs. Ross, "but I ain't hankerin' for Mr. Smythe's love exactly. You believe he is a good man, don't you?" she asked, fastening her black eyes on her daughter's face.

"I don't matter what I believe," said Mary Ann. "Well, Mr. Smythe has been a Christian for a long time. He ought to know swear-words from ordinary ones. He says, 'Mrs. Ross, I would like to see the hypocrites in this world taken out of it.' It would be a fine world then, says he."

"He wouldn't be here to see how fine, though," said the widow. "Then you don't believe what he says?" "I don't believe what he says, and I don't believe what that Watson man, who comes here with him, says. They're both liars, and Mr. Simpson is as bad as they are."

Widow Ross dropped a dish on the floor. "Why, what are you talkin' about?" she cried. "You must be crazy, Mary Ann. What if the teacher should hear you?"

"Well, it wouldn't hurt him to hear it again. I've told it to him once already."

Widow Ross stood speechless. "Well, I never!" she said with amazement, when she could find words.

Mary Ann drew her tall figure forward and her big eyes flashed.

"The other day when Mr. Simpson and Mr. Watson came home here half killed from what they said was a fall in tree you believed them, and I didn't open my mouth," said the girl.

"And why shouldn't I believe them?" snorted the widow. "Why shouldn't I? Didn't poor Mr. Watson have an arm in a sling and wasn't he that bruised, he couldn't move without groaning? And Mr. Simpson, poor man, didn't he have the awfulest pair of eyes you ever did see in a head? Didn't that godly man, Mr. Smythe, who was here with me all afternoon, believe 'em?"

"Fallin' trees don't use people up just that way," said Mary Ann slowly. "No, ma, I'll tell you just what kind of a tree fell on them fellows. It was Bill Paisley. They thought they would try some sharp work on the Bushwhackers, and Mr. Simpson, the girl's face flushed and her bosom heaved. "Bill was there and, of course, could whip a dozen excises like those two." And he did it too."

The widow sat down on a stool, her swarthy face a picture of trouble. "And do you mean to say that those two men went over there to make trouble?" she asked blankly.

Mary Ann nodded. "What for?"

"I don't know—yet."

"Do you mean you're going to know?"

"Yes, and for that reason Mr. Simpson mustn't think that we've heard anything."

Mrs. Ross went outside to call Tommy to supper. When she returned she shook her head once or twice and muttered to herself. "The teacher's gone, and the man goes to-night," she said after a time.

Mary Ann sat down to the table. "Mary Ann," asked the man gently, "ain't you carin' for him none more?"

"No, ma."

The widow poured out the tea and dished up the potatoes. She looked at the tea and spilled the potatoes and then she sat down and, stretching over her arm, kissed her daughter's brown hand.

"You're the right kind of girl for a wilder to own, the said her eyes humid with feeling. "Just the right sort. She sat erect and straight the table so hard that the dishes clattered. "But that Bill Paisley is a ruffin—a no-count ruffin, Mary Ann."

The daughter did not reply. She began her supper with a zest born of open air and sunshine. Tommy was slowing away ham and baked potatoes, and spoke with his mouth full.

"Mill ain't goin' to run to-morrow," he said. "I was over to Hallibur's shanty just after gittin' time and Jim Dox says there's somethin' wrong with the boiler."

"I wish the old feller would bust," exclaimed widow Ross. "Cause I'd want all the men to be in the shanty just the time. But the fire of that boiler, I hate that saw and I hate that whistle. This place ain't seemed the same nohow since the Colonel built that mill?" "I think the whistle is just bully," grinned Tommy. "With I could blow it all day, I'd do it."

"I whistle in all you used to make you perfect," said Mary Ann. "What's the matter with the boiler, Tommy?"

"There ain't nuthin' wrong with it," laughed the boy. "Fact is, the mill-boss want to go out on a graph, but the corner-stone of what is designed to be the most powerful radio station in the world, capable of transmitting with two sending instruments 24,000 words, hourly, or receiving and deciphering simultaneously 60,000 words hourly on five instruments. The alternating system will be used."

The Lafayette station, which now is the most powerful, has a maximum range of 15,000 miles, but experience has shown, according to the Ministry of Telegraphs, that it cannot be depended upon for more than 4,500 miles regularly, being unable, for instance, to work satisfactorily with Argentina.

The Sainte Assise Station, when complete in 1923, will be calculated, work easily and regularly with all stations in the world. The station will be erected for the Compagnie Generale Telegraphique Sanelel (General Wireless Telegraph Company). Thirty per cent. of the capital invested in the company is British, 70 per cent. French, the French Cable Company holding 20 per cent. of the total capital.

The company has a working agreement with the American Radio Corporation. The striking physical features of the plant will be 16 steel towers, 820 feet high. A number of special telegraph wires will connect the station with the remarkable telegraph offices.

Tommy laid back and roared again, and Mary Ann joined him. The widow sat stern and accusing. "Go on," she commanded.

"Smythe was tryin' to convert me, I guess," said Tommy. "You mean, says he, 'be aware of sin.' It's a bad habit. It lies in wait in quiet places. It's a snake in the grass. It's a green snake and howled."

"How he did howl and prance about!" "Take him off, take him off," he hollered. "He dropped the snake and Dave kicked it up and put it in his blouse. Mr. Smythe he stood there shiverin', and by and by that big snake, like a snake into his pocket again. The other snake twisted around his wrist and he fell down and rolled over and over. Dave got the snake and I helped the storekeeper up."

"Did you see 'em?" he yells; 'did you see them snakes?'" "Why, no, sir," I says, 'what snakes?'"

"Great big snakes," he hollers. And then he swore; cross my heart, ma, that good Christian man swore something awful."

"My gracious," sighed the good woman surprise wing maternal sternness from her face. "Are you sure he swore, Tommy?"

"No one of the Broadacre boys could swear worse or longer," asserted Tommy.

"And what did he do then?" laughed Mary Ann, tears running down her cheeks.

"Why, then Mr. Smythe turned to Dave and asked him if he'd seen any snakes, and you know what Dave did?" "He just looked at the storekeeper, out of them big eyes of his and didn't say a word. I was dyin' to laugh, but didn't. Just then along comes Jim Dox from Hallibur's shanty."

"Mr. Smythe was settin' down on a stump lookin' mighty upset."

"Sick?" asked Jim. "Come over to the shanty and I'll give you some whiskey."

"At the word 'whiskey' Mr. Smythe jumped up and pranced about like a wild man."

"I think I drunk too much whiskey," he yells, 'I've drunk too much of that stuff that stings like an adder.' "You eat as though you had 'em," said Jim."

"I have got 'em," yelled the storekeeper. "I've seen snakes, all kinds, breeds and colors of snakes. I'm a sick man. I want to get home where I can pray and pour all my whiskey through a knothole in the wall. I'll never drink it again, so help me, I won't."

"Dox he looked at me and winked and I didn't say nuthin'. After the storekeeper left I told Jim all about the little grass-snakes, and I sat him what Mr. Smythe meant when he said he had 'em, and then Jim tried to get a joke on me about men who drink whiskey keel'n' things as are not pleasant to look at. He didn't do it, though."

"I'm mighty surprised, surprised and disturbed," said the widow. "I thought Mr. Smythe was everythin' a man should be. Ain't it funny how one can be fooled by a man?"

Mary Ann looked up. "Somehow Mr. Smythe didn't fool me," she said. "I knew he drank whiskey, because he smelted of it. I knew he swore by the way his tongue and eyes fought with each other. I knew he was a liar, and I told him so. There's nobody alive and natural built that way."

The girl sat looking steadily across at her mother. Finally she leaned forward and asked: "What did Smythe ask you to do, ma?"

"Did I say he asked me to do anythin'?" flared the widow with a start. "No, but I know he did. What was it?"

"The mother's eyes blazed indignantly."

Mammoth Radio Station

French Station When Completed, Will Work Easily With All Stations In The World.

A recent despatch from St. Assise, France, says: Louis Deschamps, under secretary of state for posts and telegraphs, had the corner-stone of what is designed to be the most powerful radio station in the world, capable of transmitting with two sending instruments 24,000 words, hourly, or receiving and deciphering simultaneously 60,000 words hourly on five instruments. The alternating system will be used.

The Lafayette station, which now is the most powerful, has a maximum range of 15,000 miles, but experience has shown, according to the Ministry of Telegraphs, that it cannot be depended upon for more than 4,500 miles regularly, being unable, for instance, to work satisfactorily with Argentina.

The Sainte Assise Station, when complete in 1923, will be calculated, work easily and regularly with all stations in the world. The station will be erected for the Compagnie Generale Telegraphique Sanelel (General Wireless Telegraph Company). Thirty per cent. of the capital invested in the company is British, 70 per cent. French, the French Cable Company holding 20 per cent. of the total capital.

The company has a working agreement with the American Radio Corporation. The striking physical features of the plant will be 16 steel towers, 820 feet high. A number of special telegraph wires will connect the station with the remarkable telegraph offices.

Tommy laid back and roared again, and Mary Ann joined him. The widow sat stern and accusing. "Go on," she commanded.

"Smythe was tryin' to convert me, I guess," said Tommy. "You mean, says he, 'be aware of sin.' It's a bad habit. It lies in wait in quiet places. It's a snake in the grass. It's a green snake and howled."

"How he did howl and prance about!" "Take him off, take him off," he hollered. "He dropped the snake and Dave kicked it up and put it in his blouse. Mr. Smythe he stood there shiverin', and by and by that big snake, like a snake into his pocket again. The other snake twisted around his wrist and he fell down and rolled over and over. Dave got the snake and I helped the storekeeper up."

"Did you see 'em?" he yells; 'did you see them snakes?'" "Why, no, sir," I says, 'what snakes?'"

"Great big snakes," he hollers. And then he swore; cross my heart, ma, that good Christian man swore something awful."

"My gracious," sighed the good woman surprise wing maternal sternness from her face. "Are you sure he swore, Tommy?"

"No one of the Broadacre boys could swear worse or longer," asserted Tommy.

"And what did he do then?" laughed Mary Ann, tears running down her cheeks.

"Why, then Mr. Smythe turned to Dave and asked him if he'd seen any snakes, and you know what Dave did?" "He just looked at the storekeeper, out of them big eyes of his and didn't say a word. I was dyin' to laugh, but didn't. Just then along comes Jim Dox from Hallibur's shanty."

"Mr. Smythe was settin' down on a stump lookin' mighty upset."

"Sick?" asked Jim. "Come over to the shanty and I'll give you some whiskey."

"At the word 'whiskey' Mr. Smythe jumped up and pranced about like a wild man."

"I think I drunk too much whiskey," he yells, 'I've drunk too much of that stuff that stings like an adder.' "You eat as though you had 'em," said Jim."

"Dox he looked at me and winked and I didn't say nuthin'. After the storekeeper left I told Jim all about the little grass-snakes, and I sat him what Mr. Smythe meant when he said he had 'em, and then Jim tried to get a joke on me about men who drink

To Protect Public

Sheep Breeders Want Cloth Stamped With Percentage of Wool.

A resolution asking the Provincial Department of Agriculture to take steps to secure legislation to protect the public when buying alleged woolen goods, was passed by the Manitoba Sheep Breeders' Association, in annual meeting at Brandon.

The protection suggested was that a statement be stamped on the cloth showing the relative amounts of virgin wool, shoddy, cotton or other textile included in the make-up.

Middle Aged Women

Women should take warning from such symptoms as heat flashes, shortness of breath, excessive nervousness, irritability, and the blues—which indicate the approach of the inevitable "Change." This comes to all women nearing middle age. We have published volumes of proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the compound in the world that will cure all middle aged women can have during this trying period.

Read About These Two Women:
 "I was passing through the critical period of life, but for forty years of age and all the symptoms incident to that change—heat flashes, nervousness, and a general run-down condition so it was for me to do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me as the best remedy for my troubles, which it surely proved to be. I feel better and stronger in every way since taking it, and the annoying symptoms have disappeared."—Mrs. FRANK HANSEN, 225 Napoleon St., Fremont, Ohio.

"During Change of Life, in addition to the annoying symptoms I had an attack of pipes which lasted all winter and left me in a weakened condition. I did not think I would ever be well again. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it did for women passing through the Change of Life. I at once bought it. I soon began to gain in strength and the annoying symptoms disappeared and my Vegetable Compound has made me a well, strong woman so I do all my own housework. I cannot recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly to women passing through the Change of Life."—Mrs. FRANK HANSEN, 225 Napoleon St., Fremont, Ohio.

Women of Canada Testify

Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" was recommended to me by a friend who told me it would cure me. I tried it and it did. After taking it I was cured. I feel like a new woman and it is also the very best medicine for a woman brought up a family. I will recommend "Favorite Prescription" to any one suffering like I did. —MRS. JOSEPH BEAUDRY, R. H. 2.

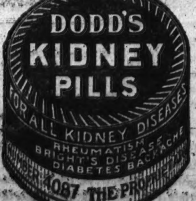

WEAK AND NERVOUS

Tillsonburg, Ont.—"I found Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription an excellent medicine for the ailments of women. I feel better, very weak and nervous. I was just miserable when I began taking the 'Favorite Prescription' and I feel now that I am so completely restored me to health that I have never had any return of this ailment. I do advise the use of 'Favorite Prescription' by women who suffer with womanly troubles."—MRS. GEO. WALKER, P. O. Box 400.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is made of lady's slipper root, black cohosh root, unicorn root, blue cohosh root and Oregon grape root. Dr. Pierce knew, when he first made this standard medicine, that whiskey and morphine were injurious, and so he has always kept them out of his remedies. Women who take this standard remedy know that in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they are getting a safe woman's remedy that does not damage anywhere else, in liquid or tablet form.

Warning By British Re Immigration.

Another warning has been issued by the British Foreign Office regarding emigration to South and Central America without ample means or a definite guarantee of employment. The warning has been prompted by the failure of another South American immigration scheme, necessitating the repatriation of more than 200 British subjects from Peru, where they had immigrated in the last six months as a result of offers by the Peruvian Government of free passage and employment upon arrival.

Wash Day and Backache

WASH DAY is the least welcome day of the week in most homes, though sweeping day is not much better. Both days are most trying on the back.

The strain of washing, ironing and sweeping frequently deranges the kidneys. The system is poisoned and backache, rheumatism, pain in the limbs result.

Kidney action must be aroused—the liver activated and action and the bowels regulated by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This favorite prescription of the well-known physician will not fail you in the hour of need.

Sunday As A Day of Rest

By LORETO C. LYNCH
An Acknowledged Expert in All Matters Pertaining to Household Management.

The other day I called on a sincere old gentleman who is working very hard for what is termed the "Blue Sunday." He told me he believed everyone should observe Sunday. He believed that folks who work hard six days a week should, in the interest of health, if for no other reason, have the seventh day upon which to rest. He was the speaker, I—the listener. He interrupted himself about two in the afternoon to inquire of his wife if dinner was ready. There was some of a feeble reply from the kitchen. Then said the man: "It's taking her all day long to bring on the dinner today—been at it, too, since nine o'clock in the morning."

I waited, anxious to hear him denounce the lady who had been working in the kitchen from nine in the morning on "the day of REST" and I waited—but there wasn't even a murmur in this direction.

The dinner was a delight. We began with cold grapefruit and went through all the courses of the conventional dinner from soup to nuts. "You've quite a party dinner to-day," I suggested, knowing that I had dropped in upon three folks unexpectedly and that no special preparation had been made for me.

"No, indeed; this is our regular Sunday dinner—about the same every Sunday. As just has to have a course dinner on Sunday."

It would not have been polite to say anything at the time, but who could help think about the convenience, or rather the inconvenience, of such a situation? Here was a man who worked hard for the observance of the day-of-rest and the OTHER fellow and then insisted on having a course dinner prepared by his own wife when he realized full well that it meant hours of work in preparation and in cleaning up.

Yet in the average, week-day American family, Sunday is often the only day when all meet together around the family board to exchange the gossip of each one's small world. Then, must the mother work all day to provide the Sunday dinner? Must she be busy in the kitchen cooking or cleaning up, while everybody else in the family sits restfully about and reads the Sunday newspaper, or plays a quiet game, or takes a nap?

The answer depends largely upon the woman herself. She must eliminate elaboration. She must carefully plan. She must manage to carry out her plan.

The observing woman will soon be able to gauge the appetites of each member of the family and will meet exactly need to putting the required amount of food on the plate. A salad or a dessert and a drink will complete this dinner with a minimum of dishes to be washed, and mother will be able to enjoy the meal with the family.

"Why, my family would not eat meat that had been cooked the day before and then just reheated," said an indignant woman to me when I suggested that she more than half roast the beef on Saturday and finish the cooking just before serving time on Sunday. Yet both her husband and her sons were active club members and frequently attended club banquets at local hotels. The chief at one hotel told me that at one of these banquets, where more than 250 turkeys were served, they had here almost cooked the day before and the cooking was completed just before serving hour.

Plan a simple meal for Sunday. Only have desserts and other foods that will be good if they are made the day before and stand in the refrigerator overnight.

If the housewife cannot have a day of complete rest, at least she should plan to do as little work as possible on the day the other folks rest.

The Eight-Hour Day

Insistent Demand of Labor Group for Legislation on This Question.

This year the labor leaders repeat the request for the eight-hour day legislation. There was an insistent demand last session from members of the Labor group for such a law, but the request was side-tracked, and it was intimated at that time that a commission would be appointed to investigate. This has not been done, but it is likely that an eight-hour law will be brought in by the government at the approaching session. The Labor conference of the League of Nations, held in Washington last year, agreed that the eight-hour day should be made the law in the signatory countries. Canada was one of them, but it has been held since by the Dominion Government that such a measure can only be enacted by the Provincial Governments.—Kitchener Telegraph.

WOMAN'S BEST LAXATIVE

Proved Every Day That Dr. Hamilton's Pills are Just Right for Women's Ills.

Little wonder woman suffers so much from constipation. She always hesitates, continually puts off taking medicine.

Of course a woman's system is delicate, it is easily injured by drastic purgatives. Bitter experience, with harsh medicines makes her cautious, and for her great injury, chronic constipation of the system is permitted.

Few pills are suited to the actual needs of women—they are too strong.

But there is a good woman's laxative, it is gentle, mild, and without thoroughness of activity—it is known to the people of many nations as Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which never gripe, never cause nausea and are safe to use no matter what the conditions of strength, or circumstances of health may be. A naturalness and regularity of the system, so important to every woman, is quickly acquired by the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

As a health-bringer, as a tonic-laxative, as an all-round ladies' medicine, there is nothing more efficacious as Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c per box, at all dealers.

Talented and perfect in their action, Miller's Worm Powders are always a safe and reliable remedy for children who show symptoms of worms. House With Straw Walls.

A house with walls made of compressed straw has been erected in Paris.

The framework of the building is of wood and the sides are filled in with blocks of tightly compressed straw, which are staked to be as hard as concrete and just as unflammable. Owing to the lightness of the materials only 500 foundations are needed, and a house of this kind can be built in a month. The idea of using straw in this way is attributed to a French textile engineer.

What's Your SKIN TROUBLE?

Does your skin get chapped and irritable? Are you distressed by slightly reddened patches on which appear tiny warts and itchy? If so, a course of fair treatment will have little effect. You need Zam-Buk whose refined herbal extracts penetrate to the underlying tissue and drive disease out. Being powerfully antiseptic, Zam-Buk purifies the skin. It soothes raw angry surfaces, soothes the intolerable burning, itchy irritation, and clears away sores and eruptions. Mr. A. Jones, of Harbor, Illinois, writes: "I had eczema on the hands for three years. The intense itching kept me awake at night. I had 'eczema cure' but got no better until I applied Zam-Buk. This wonderful medicine, however, has entirely rid me of the skin disease. Don't suffer winter skin trouble a day longer. Get Zam-Buk today! 50c. box, all dealers."

Wealth in Sweden's Forests

Tree Must Be Planted Immediately It Is Cut.

"The millionaire farmer is no novelty in Northern Sweden to-day," says a correspondent. His large forest holdings have combined with the high price of lumber to give him immense wealth. The best of it is that, by strictly enforced law, no one may cut a tree without planting another in its place, not even the owner of the land. Electric light and power have been installed in half the rural homes of Sweden, which now is a modern country. The war gave it a new impetus industrially. Motor cars are everywhere, and 75 per cent of them of imported make, although few of the cheaper kinds.

Zora, Melchior, of Constantinople, who at the age of 145 used to tell reporters that he felt younger every day, is ill. Zora is now 146, and is suffering from indigestion. He blames it on a cheap set of false teeth he bought twenty years ago, and which he says never gave satisfaction. His original dental equipment was ruined in 1809, when he made a bet that he could lift 500 pounds with his teeth.

Author of about thirty records at the mosque in Bittis show that Zora was born in Turkish Armenia in 1774. He has a son aged ninety, and a young daughter of fifty. He has been a porter all his life, carrying heavy weights that range from 200 to 1,000 pounds in appearance; he is about seventy years old.

The ministry of finance alone lost 3,200,000 francs through swindles and forgeries.

KEEP LITTLE ONES WELL IN WINTER

Winter is a dangerous season for the little ones. The days are changeable—one bright, the next one cold and stormy, that the mother is afraid to take the children out for the fresh air and exercise they need so much. Consequently they are often cooped up in overheated, badly ventilated rooms and are soon seized with colds or grippe.

What is needed to keep the little ones well is Baby's Own Tablets. They will regulate the stomach and bowels and drive out colds and by their use the baby will be able to get over the winter season in perfect safety. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The goal umpire rests on a stretcher watching the game through the funnel, while the goal keeper sits on a chair near the funnel entrance and records the ventures of the puck. Players entering the mouth of the funnel are disqualified from entering into the game of hockey for the balance of the season.
